

http://www.wordjunky.com/blog/2005/10/12/sororities-compete-for-donations/

File Edit View Favorites Tools Help

Google

Links Tools JMH&A XO PTOs Sports Free Hotmail Windows Windows Marketplace Windows Media CJH

JMH&A ... JMH PE... Serious... sig ep c... Sigma ... Sigma ... Sigma ... Sangui... Sang... x OUDa

Sanguine et Purpure

The unofficial blog of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity

- Categories
Uncategorized
- Tags
- Accountability
 - Alcohol
 - Alumni
 - Balanced Man
 - blog
 - Brotherhood
 - Campus Relations
 - Chapter participation
 - CLA
 - Community Service
 - Conclave death
 - Education
 - Foundation
 - Expansion
 - Facebook fire
 - Frat boy image
 - Fraternity
 - Fraternity
 - Experience
 - Fundraiser
 - geek
 - alert
 - Good News
 - Greek
 - housing
 - Greek values
 - Hazing
 - Housekeeping
 - Housing
 - HQ News
 - Humor
 - Iraq
 - Katrina
 - Leadership
 - NBD
 - Opinion
 - Party
 - Philanthropy
 - Politics
 - Publicity
 - Recruitment
 - SigEp
 - Sorority Sound

« Thought for the Day - October 12

Homeless and unhapp

Sororities compete for donations

Sig Eps at Oklahoma let "the girls" play dodgeball for charity.

Sigma Phi Epsilon hosted its second annual dodgeball tournament Tuesday, but the fraternity men left most of the sweating to the sorority women.

[...]

Michael Beier, Sigma Phi Epsilon philanthropy chairman and industrial engineering junior, said although they had hoped to include even more organizations in this year's tournament, the OU-Texas weekend interfered with their ability to advertise this charitable event. "Originally, we planned on branching out to all organizations," said Beier. "We want to expand it to an all-campus event." Beier said the limitation of participants has increased the success of the tournament in terms of spectators, fundraising and atmosphere. "You can see sorority girls throwing balls at each other," said Brock Carter, Sigma Phi Epsilon member and mechanical engineering junior. "It's just an amazing time."

[...]

"This year, there are a lot more fans and it's a lot more intense," said Jenny Sowers, Chi Omega member and secondary education junior. The atmosphere inside the recreational center was electric, with screams and sorority chants echoed off the walls.

Sig Ep raised over $2000 for Habitat for Humanity with this year's tournament.

The Oklahoma Daily Online Edition - Sororities compete for donations